

Tuesday's Transition Tip

Working with Students with Mental Health Challenges

The Pathways Research and Training Center provides webinars, resources, and trainings related to postsecondary education, adult services, and transition to adulthood. Their latest updates include a series of videos on key concepts and skills for working with transition-aged youth and young adults who have mental health needs.

Each video brief is accompanied by questions and resources for further learning. The video focus on working with youth from various backgrounds and beliefs. They also include information about supporting young people as they form adult relationships, collaborating with peer support providers, and supporting youth advocacy.

In today's tip we spotlight this great resource from the Pathways Research and Training Center. Visit the Pathways Transition Video Briefs Series to see the videos. And check out the Pathways Research and Training Center website for information.
